Rail Links

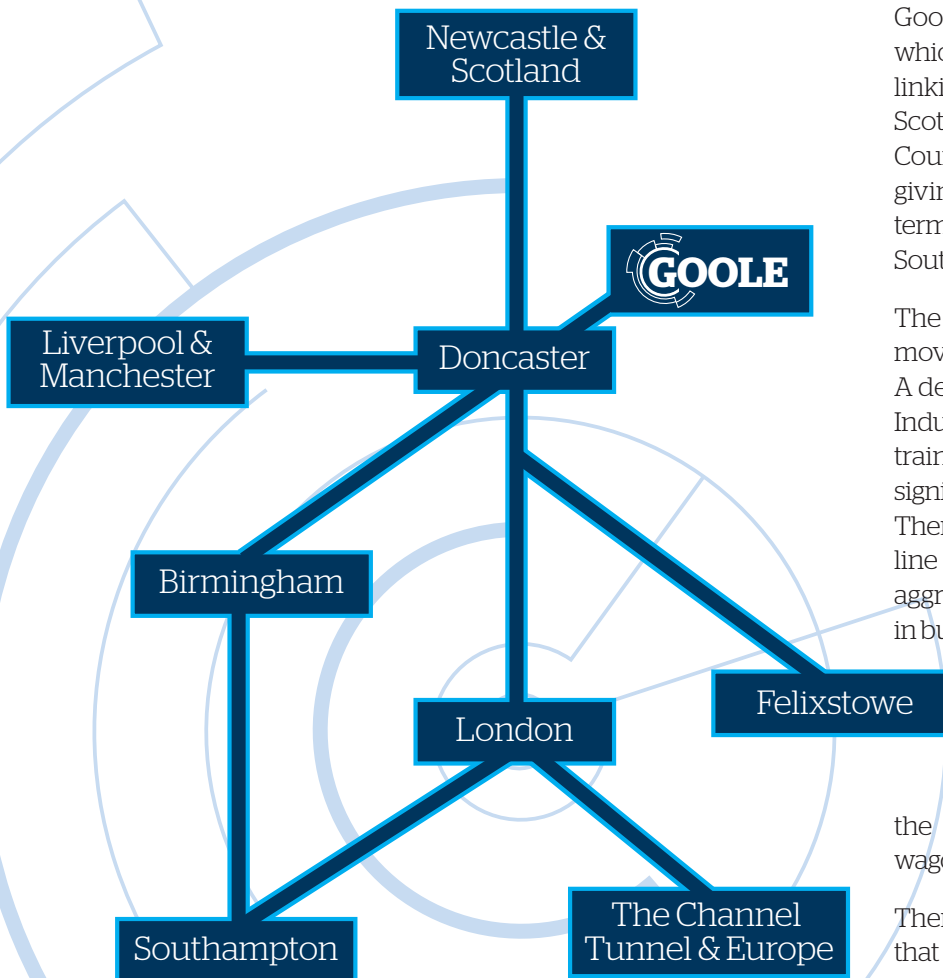

Goole is located 17 miles East of Doncaster which is situated on the East Coast Main Line linking London with the North East and Scotland. At Doncaster it also joins the Cross Country route to Birmingham and the South giving good rail connections to the freight terminals in the West Midlands and also going South to the container port at Southampton.

The site is accessed by a run round movement to the East of the development. A dedicated spur currently serves Guardian Industries. At present the site is served by one train running most days. This spur has significant capacity to serve the rest of the site. There is potential for other services to use this line and goods such as containers, steel and aggregates are ideally suited to being moved in bulk loads by rail.

The route to the East Coast Main Line at Doncaster is cleared for W8 traffic. In addition there is the possibility of getting 9ft 6in boxes to the site. This is dependent on the type of wagon / container combination used.

There are no weight restrictions on the route that will restrict trains running.

Should you require further detailed information then please contact either of the retained agents or Richard Pinker, Senior Route Freight Manager, Network Rail email: Richard.Pinker@networkrail.co.uk.
